AMESBURY LOCCA Introduces - Handheld Wireless Remotes & Intercoms to the Industry at the 2008 GlassBuild America Show in Las Vegas! BOOTH 1518

Amesbury Locca, Sioux Falls, SD, is pleased to bring wireless remote access to homeowners! Like cars of old, our homes have manual key/knob systems...but not anymore! The new ACCESS and MULTI products give us the ability to push a remote button and just push through the door...no keys, no knob turning...just push a button, and push or pull the door open. One of the best features of the Amesbury Locca access control products is that it works with most locking handle sets on the market today. It simply utilizes an electronic strike in the door frame that releases the locked latch on your existing hardware.

Also being featured is the wireless intercom called CONNECTA. Rather than walking to a wall mounted unit to talk to a visitor at your front door, just carry the handheld receiver with you. Speak to visitors and...then unlock the door to let them in from the same handheld intercom! Just speak and unlock your door from wherever you are up to 200 yards away!

Amber Grayson, Sales & Marketing Director for Amesbury Locca, "The response to this innovative product line has been great...seems that even in a down economy, people are still looking for tools to make life easier and safer. We all know that home automation is the trend, so we've embraced it and are pleased to bring wireless home access and wireless intercom to your homes and businesses."
